Myth Dispelled

Adam Possner

The flu vaccine cannot give you the flu, I tell him.
It’s dead virus, there’s nothing alive about it.
It can’t make you sick.
That’s a myth.
But if we bury it in the grassy knoll
of your shoulder, an inch under the stratum corneum, as sanctioned by your signature
in a white-coated ceremony presided over by my medical assistant and then mark the grave with a temporary
non-stick headstone,
the trivalent spirit
of that vaccine has a 70 to 90 percent chance of warding off
the Evil One, and that’s the God’s honest truth.

Dr Possner is an assistant professor of general internal medicine at George Washington University in Washington, DC. His areas of interest include preventive medicine and medical student and resident education.

Author affiliation: George Washington University, Washington, DC, USA

DOI: http://dx.doi.org/10.3201/eid1904.ET1904

Address for correspondence: Adam Possner, Medical Faculty Associates, George Washington University, 2150 Pennsylvania Ave NW, Suite 5-416 North, Washington, DC 20037, USA; email: apossner@mfa.gwu.edu

Reprinted with permission.